SHORES, GREENSBURY (Tuscarawas County) [40.639586 -81.455061]

Birth site and Date is unknown He served as a Private in the 13th Virginia Regiment in Colonel Campbell's Company commanded by Colonel John Gibson for at least October to February 1779 in OH. He died on February 23, 1779 with a group who were ambushed while gathering firewood at Fort Laurens and killed by Indians under the command of the British. The Americans completed the construction of Fort Laurens—named after Henry Laurens, president of the Continental Congress—in early December 1778 under the command of General Lachlan McIntosh. The fort, built on the west bank of the Tuscarawas River was to serve three purposes. First, the Americans hoped to use Fort Laurens as a base to attack the British garrison located at Detroit. Second, it would hopefully deter American Indians loyal to the British from conducting raids against American settlers in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. And finally, by offering protection to the neutral Christian Delaware's, the Americans might convince them to forsake their neutrality and join the patriots' cause.
In total, 21 soldiers lost their lives at Fort Laurens after a handful of British soldiers and a couple hundred Wyandot, Mingo, Munsee, and Delaware warriors laid siege to the fort before it was abandoned in 1779. Later, part of the fort was demolished during the building of the Ohio and Erie Canal. Currently none of the original fort remains above ground, but the outline of the fort is visible.

SIMMONS, PETER (Tuscarawas County) [40.639586 -81.455061]

Birth site and Date is unknown He served as a Private in the 13th Virginia Regiment in Colonel Campbell's Company commanded by Colonel John Gibson for at least October to February 1779 in OH. He died on February 23, 1779 with a group who were ambushed while gathering firewood at Fort Laurens and killed by Indians under the command of the British. The Americans completed the construction of Fort Laurens—named after Henry Laurens, president of the Continental Congress—in early December 1778 under the command of General Lachlan McIntosh. The fort, built on the west bank of the Tuscarawas River was to serve three purposes. First, the Americans hoped to use Fort Laurens as a base to attack the British garrison located at Detroit. Second, it would hopefully deter American Indians loyal to the British from conducting raids against American settlers in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. And finally, by offering protection to the neutral Christian Delaware's, the Americans might convince them to forsake their neutrality and join the patriots' cause.
In total, 21 soldiers lost their lives at Fort Laurens after a handful of British soldiers and a couple hundred Wyandot, Mingo, Munsee, and Delaware warriors laid siege to the fort before it was abandoned in 1779. Later, part of the fort was demolished during the building of the Ohio and Erie Canal. Currently none of the original fort remains above ground, but the outline of the fort is visible.

SKINNER, ABRAHAM, (Lake Co.) [41.72890 -81.23360]

Born on October 18, 1755, Glastonbury, Connecticut to Parents: Abraham Skinner and Phoebe Strong. He served from Windsor, Conn, for the relief of Boston in the Lexington Alarm, and was in the 4th Regt, Conn Line. He Married Mary Ayres in 1788; children: Mary, Paulina, Roderick and Augustus. He Died on January 14, 1826 and was originally Buried in the Old Washington Street Cemetery in Painesville; his remains and headstone were later moved to Evergreen Cemetery, Painesville, Lake Co., OH. From: "A Record Of The Revolutionary Soldiers Buried In Lake County, Ohio" (Published by the DAR, 1902): Capt. Abraham Skinner, descended, as family tradition relates, from an old English family, was born in Glastonbury, Conn., in the year 1755. About the time of the accession of Charles the Second to the British throne, the family emigrated to America, feeling, in consequence of their having espoused the cause of Cromwell, and held office under him, that a more congenial home might be found in this country. In the possession of this branch of the family, at the beginning of the past century, was a sword, which had been used by an ancestor in his service as an officer under Cromwell. This same sword again did valiant service at the time of the Salem Witchcraft Craze, for the descendants of this branch of the Skinners boast, that it was one of their ancestors, who dared to lead a squad of determined men to rescue from the gallows a poor woman, condemned to death as a witch. Of the early life of Abraham Skinner, we know but little. In the War of the Revolution, his military record shows that he served from the town of East Windsor, among the men who marched from the Connecticut towns, for the relief of Boston in the Lexington Alarm of April 1775, in Capt. Amasa Loomis' Company. Again, enlisted April 24, 1778, in Capt. Harrison's company, served eight months, and was Commissary of Prisoners, in the Fourth Regiment, Connecticut Line, Col. John Durke, commanding. He came to Painesville with Edward Paine in 1798 and settled at "Skinner's Landing." Capt. Skinner returned to Conn., remaining in East Hartford until 1803, when he again visited his Ohio lands in company with the family of Col. Paine. They brought with them horses and cattle. farming implements and young fruit trees. They contracted for the clearing of lands, and built log cabins to shelter the Paine family, and one to he ready for the Skinner family when they would come. It is said of him, that being a man of large means, and his farm always well stocked, he was thus enabled to be a source of some help to the poorer settlers, that "polite to every body and generous to the needy and suffering everywhere, Capt. Skinner occupied a prominent place among the people of his day." He was bur with Masonic honors. Fur infor New Connecticut Chap. SAR Ancestor # P-290732. Has an obelisk tombstone.

After the close of the war, Mr. Small and his family decided to go West, and in 1795 they packed their belongings in wagons, and the start was made for the West. When they reached Bedford Fort, which is now Pittsburgh, Pa., the horses were sold and the family embarked with their belongings, on a flat boat bound down the Ohio River. The river at the time was very low, and the men folk had to tow the boat until they were part of the way, when the river began to rise, caused by some heavy rains up the valley, and the river became such a torrent that it nearly capsized their boat and made landing very difficult; but finally they succeeded in making a landing at Columbia near Cincinnati. It was told that when the landing was made, Mr. Small called the entire group of folks together and prayer was held, using a large white log as an alter. Here it was that thanks were given unto God for his safe keeping them during their journey, and asking his continued guidance and safe keeping as they traversed this strange land. After a years rest, under the protection of Fort Washington, Mr. Small and his family started up the Great Miami river, following a surveying party that had blazed a trail along this river, using the rude cabins for the shelter of his family, that these surveyors had abandoned, until they reached Clear Creek, in Franklin Township, Warren County, where Mr. Small settled upon a section of land.

SMITH, JOHN III (Tuscarawas County) [40.639586 -81.455061]

Birth site and Date is unknown He served as a Private in the 3rd & 8TH Pennsylvania Regiments in Colonel Campbell's Company commanded by Colonel John Gibson for at least October to February 1779 in OH. He died on February 23, 1779 with a group who were ambushed while gathering firewood at Fort Laurens and killed by Indians under the command of the British. The Americans completed the construction of Fort Laurens—named after Henry Laurens, president of the Continental Congress—in early December 1778 under the command of General Lachlan McIntosh. The fort, built on the west bank of the Tuscarawas River was to serve three purposes. First, the Americans hoped to use Fort Laurens as a base to attack the British garrison located at Detroit. Second, it would hopefully deter American Indians loyal to the British from conducting raids against American settlers in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. And finally, by offering protection to the neutral Christian Delaware's, the Americans might convince them to forsake their neutrality and join the patriots' cause.
In total, 21 soldiers lost their lives at Fort Laurens after a handful of British soldiers and a couple hundred Wyandot, Mingo, Munsee, and Delaware warriors laid siege to the fort before it was abandoned in 1779. Later, part of the fort was demolished during the building of the Ohio and Erie Canal. Currently none of the original fort remains above ground, but the outline of the fort is visible.

"And he preached, possibly in an irregular way, the Gospel, as a devout Baptist of the Old School" to quote his grandson, J. Warren Keifer. However, he did not like Georgia "with its many scorpions and slaves" so he moved the family on horseback, twin babies among them, carried in baskets hung to the horns of the saddle ridden by his wife, through Tennessee to Kentucky. They fled Kentucky since it, too, had become a slave state, and came to Ohio. Here they settled on Duck Creek near Columbia, now within the limits of Cincinnati. In 1804 he again took to the wilderness with his family of twelve children and came finally to a farm on Donnels Creek, Clark County, Ohio. SPERRY, MARAUCHIE VAN ORDEN, (Geauga County) [41.61590 -81.25980]

Born in 1758, Netherlands. Parents: Pieter Van Orden. She was a protege of Gen and Mrs Washington; was present with Virginia at the capture of Burgoyne, and "assisted the suffering Americans on that memorable day." She Married Lieut Elijah Sperry in Apr," 177!); children: Rachel, Elam, Daniel, Peter & Lovina. She Died on May 13, 1845,_ Kirtland, OH and Buried at Center Chardon Cemetery, Plot Old Section – Lot 86, 9350 Mentor Road, Chardon, Geauga Co., OH. Cemetery notes and/or description: Location: about 3.5 miles northwest of the Village of Chardon on Mentor Road, Also known as King Memorial Highway, just past the intersection of Hermitage and Mentor Roads. The daughter of Pieter Van Orden. A wealthy family, the Van Ordens migrated to New York City during her childhood. They built a "substantial" house of brick, probably brought in the hold of the ship for ballast. Her family was driven from the city in Sept. of 1776 by Lord Howe's forces. Her father and two brothers were killed by the British and her mother died because the British had poisoned their well. Their home was destroyed and their estate was confiscated by the British. Marauchie became a protege of General and Mrs. George Washington and was present at the surrender of General John Burgoyne at Saratoga Springs, NY on 18 Oct 1777. She assisted those Continental Army soldiers wounded that day. That victory marked a turning point in the war. At some point in time, Marauchie started using the names "Polly". Perhaps because Marauchie was a difficult name to spell and pronounce. After Elijah's death, Marauchie came to Kirtland, Geauga County (now Lake County), Ohio with at least three of her surviving children: Daniel S., Lovina and Louisa. She applied at the Geauga County Court on 14 Nov 1839 for a pension based on Elijah's service in the Revolutionary War. During her appearance at the court, she stated that she "had made diligent enquiry but could not find the papers, the said Agent (in New York) having removed from the place where he then lived, and died as she is informed & believes said papers to be lost or destroyed." She also stated that she "had seen her husband's commission and also his discharge but does not know what became of either." An affidavit from Elam Sperry (Elijah's nephew) was attached. "I, Elam Sperry aged seventy eight years last May -- say that I was a nephew of Elijah Sperry deceased who was a soldier and served in the Revolutionary War, that my father was the son of the father of said Elijah by his first wife, the said Elijah a son by the second wife." He stated that they were neighbors except when Elijah served his apprenticeship as a blacksmith and when he served in the Revolution.
Alfred Phelps of Chardon, OH wrote to the Department of Pensions on 5 Aug 1840. He said "that he had been advised Feb. 27 last that "Polly's" application was filed with suspended cases. The record of service was accepted but that it would be necessary that the proof should be clear as to the marriage having been in April 1779." The town clerk of Danbury, Connecticut could find no record of the marriage. The town of Danbury had been burned and it was assumed that the record had been destroyed. The record had been in the family Bible and Elijah had copied it into a newer Bible. This Bible was in the possession of a daughter and she said that the record had been lost. Apparently all these efforts were eventually successful as Marauchie (Polly) was "inscribed on the Roll of Pittsburgh at the rate of $115.50 per annum to coommence on the 4th day of March 1836. The amount was based on 10 months 8 days of Elijah's service as a Sergeant of Artificiers and 2 years 18 days as a Lieutenant." Marauchie (Polly) died 13 May 1845 at Kirtland, OH.

"February 12, 1853, Marauchie (Polly) Sperry was a deceased pensioner. This day it was satisfactorily approved that Marauchie (Polly) Sperry was a revolutionary Pensioner, as the widow of Elijah Sperry, deceased, that said Polly died at Kirtland in the County of Lake and State of Ohio on the 13th day of May A.D. 1845."

He Died before August 31, 1802, Marietta, OH and Buried at Mound Cemetery, 5th and Scammel Streets, Marietta, OH 45750. in northwest corner. GM Marietta Chap with Revolutionary marker and on gateway, Nov 30, 1906. In early life was a sea-faring man of Salem, Massachusetts. Later moved with his family to New Salem and took up farming. The first of July,1778 the Indians and Tories sacked and destroyed the settlement of Wyoming, on the Susquehanna River. They now threatened, and had partly depopulated, the settlement of Cherry valley, which lies on the head waters of the eastern branch of that stream, fifty-two miles northwest of Albany, in the present county of Otsego, but then Tryon county, N.Y. It was a beautiful valley, noted for its fertility and picturesque scenery, being first settled as early as 1739, but greatly harassed by the Tories, who formed nearly half of the inhabitants of that county, and were friends to the crown, to which they were partly induced from the popularity and high standing of Sir Guy Johnson, who lived in the northern part of the county, and probably from respect to the governor of the state while under the king, for whom it was named. Late in the summer of 1778, Col. Alden's regiment was ordered up to Cherry valley, for the protection of the inhabitants. A stockade garrison had been previously built around their little church, and the regiment of about two hundred men took possession of it. Being rather straitened for quarters, several of the officers lodged at the houses of the adjacent inhabitants. Alden and Stacey, with a small guard of soldiers, quartered in the house of a Mr. Wells, not more than a quarter of a mile from the garrison. On the 6th of November, Col. Alden received a letter from Fort Schuyler, now in Oneida county, distant about forty miles northwest, near the head of the Mohawk, saying that an Oneida Indian, whose tribe was friendly to the United States, had told them that the Indians and Tories, under a son of Col. Butler, were assembling on the Tioga river, a northerly branch of the Susquehanna, which passes through the country of the Seneca Indians, for the purpose of attacking the fort and settlement of Cherry valley. Butler had been a prisoner with the Americans, and confined in Albany jail, a short time before, but had escaped, and was now seeking revenge. Being notified of this intended attack, he sent out scouting parties to watch their approach, although he did not actually apprehend any danger, even after this timely warning. The inhabitants, better aware of their peril, made application to the commander to be admitted within the fort, but as it was only large enough for his own men, he declined, saying it would be time enough when they were certain of the approach of the enemy. Being unacquainted with Indian warfare, he did not take shelter within the fort himself. The scout, which was sent down that branch of the river which waters the valley, having kindled a fire, were surprised in their camp and taken prisoners, so that they could not give the alarm of the advance of the Indians as he had expected. From these prisoners, Butler and Brant learned the condition of the settlement and the houses where the officers slept, being themselves familiar and acquainted in the valley before the war.

Stacy was taken prisoner where he was held for 4 years when he was exchanged and then returned to his home in New Salem. In 1789 moved his family to Ohio.
After the war he removed to Marietta, OH. After the death of his first wife, Col. Stacey married Mrs. Sheffield, a widow lady from Rhode Island, and owned four shares of land in the Ohio Company. She was the mother of the wife of Maj. Zeigler, Mr. Charles Green, and Isaac Pierce, Esq., a woman of highly cultivated mind, lady-like manners, and agreeable person. Overseer of construction of garrison at Point Marietta, OH. Foreman of first grand jury in Ohio.
Cemetery notes and/or description: The Mound Cemetery was established in 1801 by the citizens of Marietta, Ohio, to preserve an Ohio Hopewell burial mound dating from 100 BC to 500 AD, and provide for settler burials. After the Revolutionary War, the area along the Ohio River and Marietta attracted many veterans rewarded with land grants. General Rufus Putnam donated land for the cemetery. The cemetery is thought to have the largest number of Revolutionary War Officer burials, among other important Ohio River pioneer settlers and Northwest Territory politicians. Burials continue to today despite the limited space.

STARR, JOHN, (Franklin Co.) [39.94030 -83.03250]

Born on January 16, 1743, Groton, Connecticut to father Dr, Comfort Starr of Ashford, England who emigrated to Boston in 1635. Volunteered service in the fight at Ft Griswold, 1781 ; was wounded. He Married Mary Sharp; children: John & mary. He Died on August 10, 1824, Columbus, OH and buried at Greenlawn Cemetery, 1000 Greenlawn Avenue, Franklin Co., OH 43223. He went to Nova Scotia to settle, but on the opening of the war of the Revolution, espousing the cause of the colonists against the Crown of England, was compelled to flee from the Province without his family, and return to his native place; his family afterward arrived. He immediately volunteered in the service of his country, and in the terrible fight at Fort Griswold was wounded by a musket ball through the left elbow, losing the use of his arm. The Government gave him a pension for life and 1,000 acres of land in Franklin Co., Ohio, within and adjoining the present city of Columbus, to which he decided to emigrate; and in the spring of 1812, with his family, started for their future home in two large wagons; were seven weeks on the journey, arriving at their destination in June of that year. The site of the city was then a dense forest, with but a single log cabin upon it. His farm lay on the east side of the Sciota River, where a clearing was soon made, and two log cabins, of a single room each, were put up, one of which is still, or was until recently, standing (1879). They endured all the trials and hardships incident to a frontier life, and the difficulties encountered by early settlers in a new country. He was a member of the Congregational church in Groton, and of the Presbyterian church in Columbus. The committee appointed by the Connecticut Legislature to report on the condition of the suffers at Fort Griswold, describe him "as a man of good character – took up arms for our liberties – obliged to leave Nova Scotia without his family – got them since – severely wounded," etc. Of him and his son, one who knew them adds: "They were quite, honest Presbyterians, with no other ambition that to be good farmers and to raise their children in their own religious faith and practice, which they certainly did." He is buried with his wife and all their children (except Joseph) in "Green Lawn Cemetery," Columbus. His wife Mary died about five months after reaching their new home. Br 1759, Connecticut. He enlisted February 1776 in Lt. Colonel Bedel's New Hampshire Regt. marched to Ticonderoga, New York, then to Canada and was stationed at Trois River on the south side of St. Lawrence. The detachment was taken prisoner by several hundred Indians, and he was given to a squaw whose son had been killed. Through the aid of American and British officers, he was freed and rejoined his Regt. at St. John's, which retreated to Lake Champlain. He was discharged early in the winter, on account of his sickness, and returned to his friends in Vermont. In March 1777 he enlisted again for three years under Colonel Starr. He fought at the battle of Ridgefield, April 27, 1777. He joined the main army and spent the winter at Valley Forge and was at the battle of Monmouth, New Jersey, June 28, 1778. In February 1779, due to depredations and suffering of the troops, there was an insubordination among some of them. He and another soldier left for Long Island not daring to go home on account of the patriotism of his friends, but on the issue of the proclamation of pardon he rejoined his Regt. At one time, from the privation and suffering of the troops, a portion of them, Strong included, became insubordinate and drew their bayonets; General Putman had difficulty getting control over his men and one was shot by the sentinel. Strong, with another, escaped to Long Island, fearing to return home. On the issuing of a proclamation of pardon to those who returned to duty, he rejoined his regiment. After his discharge he continued to serve various tours of duty in the militia. He applied for a pension May 18, 1818, while living in Hamilton County, Ohio and on the 1820 Rev. War pension list. TAYLOR.. ROBERT, Col., (Washington Co.) [39.41998 -81.45187]

Born on December 7, 1735 Providence County, Rhode Island. He served with Rhode Island while acting in the capacity of Captain and Major of United Company of Artillery, Providence, Rhode Island. Captain Robert Taylor served with his commission of May 1776 throughout the war in Rhode Island Militia and was promoted to Major in June of 1777. He was elected to Lt. Colonel in May of 1790. He then was elected Colonel in May of 1795 in the Revolutionary War. Rhode Island appears to have used the greater part of her men at home trying to gain independence as a Colony rather than as a nation. There was a very poor record kept of the different organizations, but a few Muster Rolls and Payrolls now to be found. Yet they did much toward gaining the independence of the Colony and nation. They are counted as Revolutionary soldiers. The original commission as Captain was given by Nicholas Cooke, Governor of the Colony of Rhode Island, May 6, 1776. He married Jane Alexander (1740-1819); children: Rebecca. He Died in 1801 and Buried at Mound Cemetery, 5th and Scammel Streets, Marietta, Washington Co., OH 45750. Cemetery notes and/or description: The Mound Cemetery was established in 1801 by the citizensof Marietta, Ohio, to preserve an Ohio Hopewell burial mound dating from 100 BC to 500 AD, and provide for settler burials. After the Revolutionary War, the area along the Ohio River and Marietta attracted many veterans rewarded with land grants.
General Rufus Putnam donated land for the cemetery. The cemetery is thought to have the largest number of Revolutionary War Officer burials, among other important Ohio River pioneer settlers and Northwest Territory politicians. TAYLOR, SAMUEL, CAPT. (Tuscarawas County) [40.639586 -81.455061]

Birth site and Date is unknown, but he was probably from Shenandoah County, Virginia. He served as a Private in the 3rd & 8th Pennsylvania Regiments in Colonel Campbell's Company commanded by Colonel John Gibson for at least October to February 1779 in OH. He died on February 23, 1779 with a group who were ambushed while gathering firewood at Fort Laurens and killed by Indians under the command of the British. The Americans completed the construction of Fort Laurens—named after Henry Laurens, president of the Continental Congress—in early December 1778 under the command of General Lachlan McIntosh. The fort, built on the west bank of the Tuscarawas River was to serve three purposes. First, the Americans hoped to use Fort Laurens as a base to attack the British garrison located at Detroit. Second, it would hopefully deter American Indians loyal to the British from conducting raids against American settlers in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. And finally, by offering protection to the neutral Christian Delaware's, the Americans might convince them to forsake their neutrality and join the patriots' cause.
In total, 21 soldiers lost their lives at Fort Laurens after a handful of British soldiers and a couple hundred Wyandot, Mingo, Munsee, and Delaware warriors laid siege to the fort before it was abandoned in 1779. Later, part of the fort was demolished during the building of the Ohio and Erie Canal. Currently none of the original fort remains above ground, but the outline of the fort is visible.

In 2014 Cincinnati SAR added two outer plaques that have 25 names of Patriots mostly from the Cemeteries (Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal and German Protestant churches) on the place of what is now Washington Park in downtown Cincinnati, OH. Wadsworth was one of the earliest persons of the Connecticut Land Company: on the 2nd day of September, 1795, he, with others, signed the original contract with Andrew Kingsbury. Wadsworth spent the Summer of 1799 at Canfield and other towns, returned home in the Fall, and came again in 1801.

In 1801, Wadsworth assisted in obtaining the first mail route from Pittsburgh to the North East. Before this route was established, the nearest Post Office to Trumbull County was in Pittsburgh. At the Central Post Office very little knowledge of the country north west of Pittsburgh was possessed by the Government, as a letter dated May 16, 1801 from Abram Bradley-the first Assistant Post Master General-to Mr. Wadsworth shows. Mr. Bradley enclosed an advertisement for a proposition for carrying the mail from Pittsburgh to Warren. Bradley states that we have no correct idea of the distance to Warren, but the price for carrying would be from two dollars to three and a half counting the distance one way to carry the mail once in two weeks, and asks to be informed of the distance from Pittsburgh to Warren.

WARD, WILLIAM, (Pickaway Co.) [39.68360 -82.89060]

Born on December 25, 1743, in Hampshire, England to Parents: William Ward, .Sr. He served as a Private in Captain Francis Taylor's Company of the 2nd Virginia Regiment, commanded by Colonel Alexander Spotwood, March, 1777-March, 1778. He Married Nancy (Ann) Courtney; Children: Charles, Elizabeth, Mary, William, Robert, James, George and Richard. He Died on November 28, 1814, Walnut Township, near Circleville, OH and Buried at Reber Hill Cemetery, 16810 Winchester Road, Ashville, Pickaway Co., OH 43103, on Snider J. Ward's lot. William's father, desiring that he should learn a trade, apprenticed William to his Uncle Charles who did not however treat the lad as he deserved. He accordingly resented his uncles mistreatment and ran away. He secured a place on an English vessel through a distant relative, Commodore Ward of the English Navy. After making several trips across the ocean, he finally concluded to remain in this country despite the fact that Commodore Ward offered him every inducement to return to England. The Commodores motive in constraining the young man to return to England was not wholly unselfish, for William owed the Commodore the price of passage across the ocean. The Commodore sold the young man for an amount equal to the price of passage across the Atlantic, to a Mr. Snyder, a resident of Pendelton County, VA. Between young Ward and freedom lay 10 acres of saplings and underbrush which he had to grub to secure his release from servitude. While engaged in working out his freedom, he became acquainted with a young woman named Nancy Courtney, whose birthplace was somewhere in Scotland and who, like himself, was working out the price of her passage to this country. After securing his own freedom, he assisted Nancy in her work and hand in hand they emerged from the gloom of servitude into the clear light of American freedom. Soon after they were

WARRINGTON, WILLIAM, E. (Delaware Co.) [40.25652 -83.20799]

Born on April 10, 1751 Accomac Co., Virginia, believed to be the son of William Warrington (1695-1768). He served as a Private under Colonel Matthews, Captain Snead, Washington Life Guards, Enl 1776 from VA ; 1777 was transferred to Connecticut in Chiefs Guard, under Captain Caleb Gibbs, Combat veteran of the Revolutionary War credited with saving the life of General George Washington by intercepting poison intended for the General. He married four times – 1) Name unknown, 2) Leah Townsend – children were: John Warrington (1797 - 1871), Sarah (1799 - 1883) who married William Mershon (Feb 28, 1796 - July 2, 1864) on June 1, 1820 in Mason Co. KY. Mary (1800 - ?) Married Stephen Townsend. William Warrington III (1801 - 1856), Leah Townsend-Warrington later married Isaac Hawk Mar 18, 1851., 3) Nancy Holland – children were Julia Ann Warrington (1801 – 1899), Cosmore G. Warrington (1810 - 1878) and George Washington Warrington (? - ?) who died as an infant, 4) Nancy Pryer Littell (1791 - 1874) whom he married Feb 12, 1836 - one child named Charlotte Jane Warrington Turner (Dec. 31, 1836 - Mar 15, 1918). He is also credited with having served in the War of 1812. William eventually settled in Maysville, KY but departed in 1826 after the death of his third wife Nancy Holland in 1824 for Ohio where he died in Delaware County.
He Died on May 10, 1850 and Buried at Mill Creek Cemetery, Ostrander, Scioto Twp, Delaware Co., OH 43061. One existing mystery is the discrepancy of William's birth and death dates on his original marker and the newer marker erected by Ostrander Masonic Lodge 594. The month and year for both dates on both markers are consistent but the days differ by approximately two weeks. No explanation has been found.
The following story was published in the Jan - Dec 1919 issue Volume LIII of the Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine:
It was William Warrington's delight to narrate to his family and friends anecdotes of his General Washington: One of these relates to an incident in which Martha Washington figured. She was with the General at Headquarters and had occasion to go outside the lines. Upon her return, having forgotten the countersign, Sergeant Warrington, who was acting as the sentinel at Headquarters, refused to permit her to pass. Mrs. Washington pleaded, but all in vain. The only suggestion he would consider was to inform the General of the predicament of the "Lady of Gracious Memory". General Washington went to her rescue and laughingly whispered the password to his wife and she was permitted to pass by the obdurate sentinel. In telling this story Sergeant Warrington was wont to say "It was the only time I ever heard General Washington laugh heartily".

He then became General Israel Putnam's aide de camp, serving until June, 1776 when he joined the staff of General George Washington as his aide and private secretary with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Webb took part in the Battle of Long Island, and was wounded again at the Battles of White Plains and Trenton. After taking part in the Battle of Princeton, Webb returned to Connecticut and used his inheritance to raise and equip a regiment at his own expense, of which he was commander with the rank of Colonel. In late 1777 Webb was taken prisoner during a raid on Long Island and remained on parole until his exchange in 1781. After his exchange in 1781, Webb assumed command of one of the Continental Army's two newly organized light infantry regiments with the brevet rank of Brigadier General and served until the end of the war. Born in Germany, May 6, 1730. He served as a Private and Corporal in Captain Martin Bowman's Company, Pennsylvania Militia. He Married Mary Roshon (1732-1801) 1751; children: Christian. He arrived in America in 1751, living for a year in Philadelphia, then settling on a farm among the Brethren community in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. Jacob paid for Mary Roshen's (1732- 1801) passage from Germany in 1752. As was often the case with immigrants, a term of indenture was entered into in exchange for paying for passage upon arrival in the colonies. This must have been a positive event for they were married a year later, in 1752, in Philadelphia. Together they produced one son, Christian, and one additional but unidentified child. In 1763 Jacob purchased 193 acres of land from Michael Baughman and 200 acres from Christian Baughman in the Cocalico Township of Lancaster Pennsylvania. It was on these lands that Jacob and his family would make home. He Died in Lancaster, PA on December 4, 1806 and Buried at Baugher Cemetery, Brook Road NW, Dumontsville, Fairfield Co., OH 43130. Cemetery notes and/or description: Until the 1930's a church stood beside Bacher-Baugher Cemetery to the south. Land was granted for the cemetery in 1847 but graves date from as early as 1806. There are four Revolutionary War veterans buried here. There are many open spaces between the tombstones indicating that there may be stones missing. Many of the stones are made from sandstone and are flaking badly and are difficult or impossible to read. A number of the stones have been repaired. Unfortunately at the back of this cemetery along the fence is a pile of stones (and pieces of stones) which have been removed from the cemetery proper.

Many veterans buried in family cemeteries, neighborhood plots or small church burial grounds which are now extinct and or built over during the disappearance of rural areas and the increase of urban communities in Hamilton County during the late 19th century or 20th century are now lost to our knowledge. Their families having re-located, their descendants now not knowing their homes, deeds, and/or burial locations lead to their obscurity.

WILSON, JAMES, (Ross Co.) [39.343 -83.369]

Born on July 3, 1743 in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania. James was a member of the "Committee of Observation" for Cumberland County. Pennsylvania. 12 Jul 1774 to Aug 1776. He was reportedly a captain in the Militia though this name is common throughout Pennsylvania and the certainty of the right person of the name is not possible. In 1779 and 1780. James paid a "supply tax" in Cumberland County. He married Agnes Henderson (1745-1796) in 1769; Children: John, Wilson, Eleanor, Sarah, Amanda, Edward, Polly, Betsey, Rebecca, Robert & Sallie. moved from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1797, accompanied by most of his children, his wife having died previously. He and several emigrants clubbed together and built a flat-boat on the Monongahela River, on which they placed their families and floated down to the Ohio river, and thence down that river to where Portsmouth now is, but was then a dense wilderness. They had on board horses, cattle and sheep. The company encamped till my grandfather and uncle John went up to Chillicothe and procured a keel boat and returned with it down the Scioto River. While they were gone, the wolves made sad havoc with their little flock of sheep. When the keel boat arrived at the mouth of the Scioto River, the families and effects were put on it and the boat was keeled up the river. When they arrived at Chillicothe, they found but one house with a shingle roof and that was a log structure. They arrived in the spring season, and the families remained there some weeks while the working portion of the males went to Pickaway Plains and planted a crop of corn, after which the women and children were taken to their new homes.

The Indians had not yet left the country, and used to assemble at the residences of the new-comers and sing their songs which were to the whites a great novelty. But the natives of the forest soon afterward disappeared and melted away into the western forests, leaving their successors, the white settlers, in quiet possession of their "hunting grounds". They continued to cultivate the land and soon the aborigines were almost forgotten. Week after week, month after month, year after year, other settlers crowded in--and they were always welcome--and their children grew up, and soon began to marry, multiply and increase. On January 1, 1777, the survivors of the 5th Battalion, along with exchanged prisoners and new recruits, were reorganized into the 6th Pennsylvania. Most of the regiment's men were recruited from Berks and Chester counties, although many came from Philadelphia and as far away as Northumberland County. During 1777, the regiment participated in the Philadelphia Campaign and fought at the Battles of Brandywine (11 Sept.) and Germantown (4 Oct.). At Brandywine, the women of the 6th Pennsylvania were cited for their bravery under fire while bringing water to the men. The regiment spent the winter of 1777-78 at Valley Forge and took part in the Battle of Monmouth (28 June) the following summer. In 1779, the 6th Pennsylvania was part of the force commanded by "Mad" Anthony Wayne that stormed the British fortifications at Stony Point, NY (16 July). It spent the rest of the year in garrison at West Point and probably wintered at Morristown. The next year, the regiment took part in a number of small engagements in New Jersey and again wintered at Morristown. On New Year's Day, 1781, members of the 6th Pennsylvania joined the mutiny of the Pennsylvania regiments then quartered at Morristown. After a settlement was reached, the regiment was furloughed at Trenton on January 17. Soldiers remaining in the regiment were reassigned to other units and eventually sent south to take part in the Yorktown Campaign.

A number of the family are buried there in the Churchyard Cemetery where some old limestone markers may still be seen. Samuel and his wife are not buried there as they left in 1818 to relocate in Highland County, Ohio.
All except three of their children followed their parents to Ohio, although it is not known the method of travel. They settled in that location as it was part of the "Virginia Military District", land set aside for soldiers of the Revolution in lieu of cash payment for the service rendered during the war. Some sold their land rather than settling on it. One of them, Lieutenant Joseph Conway received a large portion, had it surveyed, and after his death it was sold by his heirs. Samuel's land was part of this Joseph Conway survey. Samuel and Aluice are the earlist marked graves and are located next to the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Highland (formerly Lexington) Cemetery. He married 1) Ruth__, 2) Lucretia Catlin; Children: Sabra, Lucretia, Dorcus, Emily, Rowand, James, Justus, Harvey, Parmenas, Mary Ann, Lysander, Luther and Tirzah. James lived in Tolland until 8 years of age. his mother died April 26, 1770 when he was about 4 and he then lived 4 years with his grandfather Terryl. He was bound out to live with Jonathan Bliss of Wilbraham, Mass., and lived with him 8 years. At 16 years he went to learn the mason trade with Asa Ayres of Wilbraham. After his marriage to Lucretia Catlin, they lived in South Hadley on a 19-acre farm near the center of town until the year 1803. Asa Ayres is listed in the 1790 Census at South Hadley; the only Asa Ayres listed in Mass. It is probable that while James was serving his apprenticeship, Asa moved from Wilbraham to South Hadley, only a few miles away, James going with him.

James is not listed in the 1790 Census, but his father-in-law, Samuel Catlin is. There is one extra male over 16 listed in the household. Could this be James Woodworth? James is listed in South Hadley, Hampshire Co., Mass., in the 1800 Census, the family consisting of himself and wife and 8 children: 2 males under 10; 1 male 10-16; four females under 10; and one female 10-16. Ensign of the 4th Company or train band in the 12th Regiment of the State of Connecticut. On 3 February 1803, he moved to Bolton, Washington Co., New York, which is on the west side of Lake George. After the Revolution, men came to the wild wooded area; the majority settling on the hilltops overlooking the lake, the main artery of the area, and the balance of the narrow lake plain. WYLLYS, JOHN PALSGRAN, (Hamilton/Butler/ or IN Counties*)

Born in 1754. He served throughout the Revolutionary War as Major of the Third Connecticut Regiment; was with General Harmer in his expedition against the Indians, and was killed in the attack on Miami Town ?, 30 September, 1790. [*Most of Ohio's

American Indians had been driven from the eastern portion of the state during the American Revolution, although many American Indians still hunted in this area. In 1790, Josiah Harmar, commander of the U.S. army in the Northwest Territory, was stationed at Fort Washington (present-day Cincinnati, Ohio). Henry Knox, the Secretary of War, ordered Harmar to end the threat of American Indian attack in western Ohio. Harmar marched from Fort Washington with 320 regular soldiers and roughly 1,100 militiamen, primarily from Pennsylvania and Kentucky. The militiamen were poorly trained, many did not know how to correctly load and fire a musket, and some did not even have a gun. Harmar was to destroy American Indian villages near modern-day Fort Wayne, Indiana. He intended to attack the Miami, the Shawnee, and the Delaware, along with the villages of other American Indian peoples located in western Ohio. Many American Indians fled their villages as Harmar's army approached. The U.S. forces burned several villages, but the American Indians regrouped. On October 20, the natives, led by Little Turtle, attacked a detachment from Harmar's army led by Colonel John Hardin. Hardin's force consisted of several hundred militiamen and a few regular soldiers. Hardin led his men into an ambush. Most of the militiamen fled the battle. The regular soldiers put up a brief resistance, but the natives killed many of them. Some of the retreating militiamen did not stop until they crossed the Ohio River into Kentucky. Harmar sent another detachment after Little Turtle's warriors two days later. Once again, the natives inflicted heavy casualties upon the U.S. forces. Harmar immediately retreated to the safety of Fort Washington. He had lost 183 men killed or missing in this campaign. It became known as Harmar's Defeat. The precise location isn't known.]He married, as below, his cousin, Jerusha, daughter of Colonel Samuel Talcott, but had no issue (Children). Descendant of Gov Wyllys, 3rd Governor of Conn. ZANE, ELIZABETH, (Belmont County) [40.1000 -80.7181]

Born October 30, 1759 Westmoreland County, Virginia to parents William Zane and Nancy Ann Nolan. Wife of 1) Ephraim McLaughlin and 2) Jacob Clark; children: Mary, Mariam Minerva, Sarah, Rebecca, Hannah, Catherine and Ebenezer. She went from Ft

Henry to her brother Colonel Zane's house, where he tied a table cloth around her wrist, filled it with powder. Fleet of foot, she returned amid volleys, unharmed. "A man will be such great loss. I will not be missed" she had said. Zane was a woman of remarkable character, full of activity, and of indomitable energy. She was equal to every emergency that arose in a life full of startling incident. Her thrift, management, industry, intelligence and untiring labors, were noted characteristics. "She was as brisk as a bee," said one who knew her well, she could turn her hand to anything. She was the surgeon of the neighborhood, becoming quite an adept in the art and was called upon to perform difficult and serious operations. She was also a skillful nurse, and had nerve to undertake the most difficult enterprises when necessity demanded. In 1785, a man named Mills was shot by the Indians while spearing fish at night, some distance above the fort, Rising in the canoe with his torch to throw the light in the right direction, he received a whole volley from a party of Indians on the shore. He was brought to Wheeling, and Mrs. Zane extracted seventeen bullets from his body, cutting them out with a razor as nicely as a surgeon with his delicate instruments. Mills was nursed and cared for by her and a Mrs. Williams, fully recovered, and lived for many years, a monument to the skill and care of these women in their patriotic service. She Died in August 1823 at 64 years of age and Buried at Walnut Grove Cemetery, Martins Ferry, Belmont County, OH. ZEISBERGER, DAVID (Tuscarawas County) [40.44304 -81.41108]

Born on April 11, 1721 in Zanchtenthal, Moravia (Czech Republic). He supplied the Patriotic Service of intelligence to the American forces about movements and activities of the Indians. In addition to intelligence the Moravian Indians gave what little they could to help Fort Laurens food supply. In August 1781 he became aware that Monakaduro, Chief of the Shawnees, was planning an attack on Fort Henry. David Zeisberger had a trusted Moravian Indian boy take a message to Col. Gibson at Fort Pitt. By the time Chief Monakaduro and Matthew Elliott reached Fort Pitt on 13 September 1781, they had been warned. Ten men rushed out of the Fort and all but one were killed. Monakaduro broke off the attack when he realized that they knew they were coming. The remainder of the American Revolution was very hard upon the Moravians. The hostilities were so intense for a while that David Zeisberger helped them establish a new village in Canada. In 1798 the United States Congress gave the Moravians a tract of land in Ohio. They established Goshen and this where he died ten years later. It isbelieved he did not marry. Religious figure. David Zeisberger was a Moravian clergyman, missionary, and translator among the Native Americans in the Thirteen Colonies. He travelled from Pennsylvania to Michigan territory. He became fluent in the Onondaga Iroquoian dialect. He also produced dictionaries and religious works in Iroquoian and Algonquian. He worked among the Delaware of Pennsylvania, coming into conflict with British authorities over his advocacy of Natives' rights and his ongoing efforts to establish white and native Moravian communities in southern Ohio. His relations with British authorities worsened during the American Revolutionary War and in 1781 he was arrested and held at Fort Detroit. On March 8, 1782,while he was imprisoned, 98 of his Native American converts in Ohio were murdered by Pennsylvania militiamen in a bloody event known as the Gnadenhutten Massacre. He died at 87 years of age on November 17, 1808 in Goshen, Tuscarawas County, and buried at the Indian Cemetery in the center of Goshen, Tuscarawas County, OH 44663.
